Robotics Handbook Wins “Oscar of Scientifc Publishing”

We are very proud and happy to announce that the “Springer Handbook of Robotics”, edited by Bruno Siciliano and Oussama Khatib, has won two PROSE Awards presented by the American Association of Publishers, Professional and Scholarly Publishing Division. On February 5th, in Washington, D.C., less than 9 months after its publication, the Handbook was recognized with the PROSE Award in the Engineering & Technology Category, as well as with the Award for Excellence in the overall Physical Sciences & Mathematics Category.

This awards recognize the efforts all the editors, part editors and authors have devoted to this challenge, with their contributions, commitment and passion and can be well seen as a tribute to Robotics as an established scientific field. The Handbook also was the Springer bestselling title in engineering in 2008.
With the very best wishes,

Thomas Ditzinger
